

ABSTRACT

According to the embodiment, there is provided a recording apparatus which time-divides a stream of continuous video or audio signals into a first stream and a second stream, records the first stream on a first recording medium as a first file, and records the second stream on a second recording medium as a second file. First management information related to a manufacture code number, being unique to a medium, for specifying the second recording medium is recorded on the first recording medium in association with the first file, or second management information related to a manufacture code number, being unique to a medium, for specifying the first recording medium is recorded on the second recording medium in association with the second file.